Junior Promenade to be Held Tomorrow Evening at the Middlebury Inn

Vol. XXVIII. MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE, MIDDLEBURY, VT., MAY 6, 1931 No. 26

JUNIOR PROMENADE PLANNED AS CLIMAX OF WEEK'S PROGRAM

Royal Arcadian Orchestra to Provide Music for Dance.

PROM QUEEN TO BE CHOSEN BY JUDGES

Selection of Four Ladies in Waiting to Be New Feature.

The climax of the junior week festivities will come tomorrow night with the annual junior prom to be held at the Middlebury Inn at 9 p. m.

A new feature of the dance, added this year for the first time, will be the selection of four ladies-in-waiting, in addition to the junior prom queen. These choices will be made by the same committee as the one deciding upon the prom queen.

With Billy Murphy's nationally famous Royal Arcadians to furnish the music, the promenaders are anticipating a most enjoyable evening. Middlebury students and guests attending the dance are very fortunate in having this musical group to entertain them, and the committee feels certain that the orchestra will live up to its unusual reputation of successful and popular programs. The Royal Arcadians have a record in their home ballroom in New York city that is very favorable, and the fact that they are booked up for every night up to and including Labor Day indicates their fine quality.

This junior prom, as in all previous years, promises to be the most colorful dance of the social year. Mr. Horr and his committee have made careful plans and can assure a most successful evening to all who attend.

Arrangements have been completed for the selection of the prom queen, who will receive a silver loving cup as the gift of the junior week committee. This cup has been on display in Edwards' men shop for the past few weeks.

Guests and chaperons will include ex-Governor and Mrs. John E. Weeks, Pres. and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Dean Eleanor S. Ross, Dean Burt A. Hazeltine, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fritz, Mrs. Maud O. Mason, and Miss Mary S. Rosevear.

REV. C. C. ADAMS WILL TEACH BIBLE COURSE

Pastor of First Church of Burlington Will Also Occupy Local Pulpit.

The Rev. Chauncey Corbin Adams, pastor of the First Church of Burlington since 1915, has resigned his pastorate and accepted a call to the Congregational Church of Middlebury. In addition to his duties as minister he will conduct classes in religious education in the college.

His course in Bible instruction will be open to members of the class of 1933 and to all succeeding classes in preparation for the examination which must be passed before graduation. Dr. Adams will hold classes three hours a week throughout the college year.

The course will not be required and daily attendance will be voluntary.

Dr. Adams was born at Charlestown, N. H., October 24, 1872. He was educated in Bellows Falls high school, Dartmouth college, A. B. 1896, D. D. 1923, and Chicago theological seminary, 1900. The entire ministry of Dr. Adams has been in Chittenden county, commencing in Hinesburg in 1901, continuing in Essex Junction in 1907 and in the First Church in Burlington in 1915, which during his pastorate has become the largest in membership of any in the state.

College Men to Compete in Interfraternity Sing

The eight men's fraternities of Middlebury will compete in an Interfraternity sing on the steps of Mead chapel Saturday, May 9, at 10:30 p. m., immediately following the junior play. This traditional occurrence promises to be one of the most interesting events of the coming junior week program.

The fraternities are scheduled to sing in the following order: Beta Kappa, Kappa Delta Rho, Delta Upsilon, Chi Psi, Alpha Sigma Phi, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Beta Psi, and Delta Kappa Epsilon. Each group will sing two selections.

Eugene Thiele, chairman of the junior week activities will supervise the program. Miss Prudence Fish, Prof. Lewis J. Hathaway, and Prof. Harry G. Owen are to act as judges of the contest.

TRACK MEN TO MEET COLBY HERE FRIDAY

Invading Team Has Been Successful in Indoor Meets During Winter.

The track team from Colby college, Waterville, Maine, will visit Porter field in Middlebury's third meet of the season tomorrow afternoon.

After a winter of intensive training and participation in several indoor meets, Colby brings a seasoned team of athletes, including champion mile relay men. At the Massachusetts Knights of Columbus meet, held in the Boston Garden January 31, men from Colby were entered in most of the events which were run off. In the mile relay, the Colby squad defeated Rhode Island State, with 3:39 time. Later, at the Boston Athletic Association meet, held in Boston February 14, this time was bettered to gain first place for them in a field including Mass. State, Rhode Island State, and Worcester Polytech in 3:37.5.

A few of the best men of Colby who have been entered in these meets and who will contest with Middlebury tomorrow are Flaherty, Haight, Martin, and Hyde in the sprints; Robinson and Wheeler, hurdles; Hodkiewicz, Caddoo, Williams, Christie, Locke and Kellogg in the middle distances. Robinson seems to be the best high jumper, Trewargy the best pole vaulter, and Cabana the best man for the two mile run.

Although Middlebury has been defeated by Williams and Springfield with rather overwhelming scores it is expected that the blue and white will do a much better job against the Mules.

STATE SERIES GAMES ON SPORTS PROGRAM

Baseball Contests With Vermont Today and Norwich mont and Norwich Will Provide Tough Opposition

Middlebury's baseball team will find strong opposition in its initial battle of the season for the state title as it meets Vermont this afternoon and Norwich Saturday. There will not be as much strength to be overcome as Middlebury encountered on the Massachusetts trip, but the Hesslerites must make some improvement and use the breaks of the game to secure victories.

Coach Hessler did considerable experimenting with the team he used on the trip, juggling up the outfield and giving all the men taken a chance to show their ability. To all appearances everyone was about the same, so the final combination is uncertain. Jimmie Olson seems to be the only fixture, with Makela, Crocker, Dumas, and Stefaniak the other outstanding candidates. The infield is settled, with Nelson at the initial sack, Murphy on second, Yeomans at short, and Sorenson holding down the hot corner.

Pitching is the department that needs the greatest improvement. Evald Olson did some good work in his relief assignment but the remainder of the staff failed to do anything impressive. If the twirlers come across with some good performances the team should do better than on the trip.

Vermont has not been particularly impressive until recently, having taken two extended trips and lost practically

JUNIOR PLAY WILL BE REPEATED SATURDAY

First Presentation of "The Romantic Age" Was Well Received.

The junior play, "The Romantic Age" will be given for the second time Saturday evening at 8:15 at the college Playhouse.

A successful first presentation was given last evening before a large audience. The finished performance of last night indicates that the junior play will have its usual prominent place in the junior week program. The play is under the direction of Prof. V. Spencer Goodreds, head of the drama department, and includes a cast of men and women experienced in acting.

"The Romantic Age" is singularly well adapted for presentation as a junior week play. The setting is on the estate of an English gentleman and the plot revolves about his daughter's quest for romance. She finds it in a young man who seems to come to her from the age of chivalry. Milne deals with the plot in his usual whimsical manner, holding the interest of his audience with clever dialogue and tense situations. The surprising climax is an entirely satisfactory conclusion to an unusually amusing and delightful comedy.

Tickets for the Saturday evening performance may be procured from any member of the play committee for the usual price of one dollar.

DRESS PARADE.

Uniforms beautiful beyond the point of utility, a spectacle more impressive than effective, and a gorgeous display whose distinguishing features are beauty and impermanence, characterize dress parade. Yet this brilliance inspirits the soldier for the march, and the march is the thing.

Four days's events have long been talk, but now are to become swift moving realities with the bewildering rapidity. Before is not the time to cry achievement, and sponsors would not judge; yet if hard work and desire to do well are any guarantee of success, the junior class can already congratulate itself.

Middlebury is not always as beautiful as now, clothes are not always so new and of such variety, and May does not last twelve months; so junior week is a thing apart and above, to be enjoyed because so incomparably enjoyable. It is Middlebury's dress parade, a carefully arranged spectacle of ourselves as we wish we might always be. That we cannot be is the strongest reason for an extra bit of gaiety and celebration now, that four days hence we may go on with the satisfaction of beauty and happiness enjoyed and ourselves strengthened from them. No festival of the best can last, but remembrance of each is worthy for itself. After all, does it really matter so very much if friendships weaken when tested by routine and everyday clothes—when tuxedo, evening dress, and yellow roadster are subordinated to books, marks, and theses. One cannot lose what he has lived. There may be a forced march tomorrow, but today is dress parade.

Junior week is the year's last break for six hundred Middlebury undergraduates, who for months have been trying to escape the encroaching reality of the postponed, but soon no longer can. For one hundred and thirty seniors it is a final retrospect before an embarkation so long anticipated that it has ceased to be real. So junior week, the last and best of Middlebury's social year, is here today. And we must live today if we are to be alive tomorrow.

There will always be those who, having worked all week, do not sing on the holiday; and there will always be those who having bound themselves up in mathematics and French all year, forget that a true part of Middlebury College comes the middle of May. Some we know are now making this mistake. Let them soon see the place of gold braid and plummed hat; let them awaken to the worth of white flannels and sleek shining car.

To you prospective Middlebury students who have come to see the college and be part of it for a week-end, we can only say that we hope that it will measure up to your standards, and that you may be impressed by the advantages that present and past Middlebury students think so desirable. Middlebury has done everything possible to make itself pleasing to you for these next four days, and only hopes that you may begin to feel a spirit and an atmosphere which, given the chance, will become increasingly real and valuable to you during the next four years.

Here we too welcome again you who are the guests of Middlebury students. Personal friendships brought you here, and it is our sincerest wish that you may carry away as an added tie a happy remembrance of Middlebury; that returning to your own colleges you may think well of our college, its country, its spirit, and its ideals.

For us to enjoy gaiety, beauty, and happiness, before winding up the scholastic year in a final spurt of work; for prospective students to become familiar with the college, and we hope begin for it a long increasing regard; for friends to see the Middlebury of which they have been told, and to enjoy both a happy companionship and an entering into life and spirit of the college—these are the purposes of junior week. Here is a gaiety carefully planned that it may be real happiness, and truly successful because it is so worthy.

Belittle dress parade?

Galley Grist

BLUE HARVEST, by Frances M. Frost, ex-'28, Boston, Houghton Mifflin Co.

Even a casual glance at this book reveals why its author has gained the place she has as a writer, and her poems, ranging from "Rain" to "Girl in a Tree" are treated with a variety of style which reveals her versatility. Poems like "Ballad of a Beginning", "Day" and "Words" stand out from among the other poems, though all are marked by a uniform high quality. The poems show a keen love of nature, and a careful insight into it, and simplicity is a prominent characteristic of the work. It is also pleasing to find that on analyzing various lines their meaning still remains, and does not disappear into mere sound, as the lines of some poems have a habit of doing. A poem like "Day" reminds one of Robert Frost's work to some extent, but throughout there is a freshness to the verse, which can come only from original thinking and work. Here and there, as in the poem "Escape" there are minor imperfections, but one more than receives compensation for them when a poem like "Fog" is read.

The author, formerly of the class of 1928 at Middlebury College, is now married to William G. Blackburn, and is an instructor at the University of Vermont.

WHITE FAWN, by Olive H. Prouty, Boston, Houghton Mifflin Co.

In WHITE FAWN love once again finds a way, and the poor, but persistent young man, wins the hand of the rich young debutante. When Fabia Vale, of the Boston Vales, "came out", her mother likened her to a white fawn, an individual different from those about her, yet compelled to run with them. On the night of her first party, an accident brings Fabia and Daniel Regan together, Dan being the son of a family living on the wrong side of Beacon hill. From the start both realize the impossibility of the affair, and yet it progresses despite all obstacles. Opposition from Fabia's family, advice from Dan's best friend, and their own quarrels but tend to bring them closer together. Fabia finally finds the solution to their problem; they must marry, and then move to the west, leaving Boston society behind, at the same time giving Dan a chance to achieve his ambitions as a surgeon. Thus, all ends happily.

The theme of the book is outworn, and from the start there is little doubt as to the ultimate outcome. The manner in which they solve their problem is in itself too good to be true. The author, however, apparently knows her way about Boston, and is conversant with the foibles of polite society. Her portrayal of the life of young society members is well done, and some of her characters, especially Lisa Vale, Fabia's mother, are finely drawn. The revolt of youth, against the conservatism of society, is interestingly brought out, though one notices that while there are those who utter words of revolt, few follow their ideas, most of them being content to dos as their society minded parents dictate.

MERE MARIE OF THE URSULINES, by Agnes Repplier, The Literary Guild, New York city, $2.50.

In MERE MARIE OF THE URSULINES, Agnes Repplier presents the biography of an adventurous pioneer in New France, founder of the Ursuline convent in Quebec, and friend to French and Indian alike in the days of the early wars for supremacy.

Marie Guyard, a French girl living in the city of Tours, after the death of her husband, entered the convent of the Ursulines in her home city. Presently came a call for a courageous, intelligent nun to journey to Quebec, where the colonists were beginning to realize that their danghters were missing some of the education necessary to only moderately civilized peoples. So Marie, together with two other nuns and some helpers, came to America.

Her thirty-three years of work in Canada were an unremitting round of duties, and united to employ her not only as a devout mother of the convent, but as suppliant for aid from France, teacher of French and Indian girls, and dearly beloved friend and counseler of all. Life in this New France was heavy with hardships and fraught with peril and adventure. It was a land of sturdy pioneers, fighting to gain a living from the soil, and from the woods and streams. And in this country of which she recognized the natural beauty, Mere Marie did a work which has had a lasting influence on the education and culture of the people of Quebec.

Agnes Repplier wrote this book with the conviction that the modern reading public is consuming too many biographies of sinners, and that there is place for some of saints. But she is also convinced that even saints are human, and have worldly connections; and with this spirit, she produced MERE MARIE OF THE URSULINES.

Shreds and Patches

Again it is junior week with us, so let there be wassail all; nay, let the whole realm ring with revelry. To be more personal, let us all dish the books, retire just before dawn, and sleep till noon. But shouldn't there be something to make this week distinctive?

The whole program should be a great success, with the cooperation that all hands are showing. Entrenchments are being cast up in the greener portions of the campus lawn, we notice with our keen perception. What a thorough method for removing dandelions!

To complete the picture, the whole class of 1931 has turned out in a body and is shamelessly raising cane. For the laugh here, we refer you to Genesis IV:8.

There we go again — always offending someone, and this time they've gone so far as to remove the chapel steeple completely, in their embarrassment. So sorry.

Another student disappearance is scheduled for the syndicate soon, which will give Middlebury an even break with the rest of the universities. It's only a matter of hours before somebody is blown bodily off the tennis courts by the current hurricane.

With all the formal bids showered hither and yon, and the season nearly past, about the only dance we can expect to hold out for is that of St. Vitus, and you know what that would mean.

This drop in the temperature should have a direct effect on the misguided individuals who sent the rush orders home for bathing suits.

Now, by official proclamation, three classes at Middlebury do hereby become pedestrians, while the favored senior gets into his car and rides madly off in all directions. It could be worse, though, for collegiate Fords are taboo.

Add similes—as graceful as a Hepburn commons waiter carrying three soups and meeting a fellow-garcon identically armed, in a narrow aisle.

As the men of Midd go down to defeat at the hands of colleges many times her size, as word comes in of similar defeats on other sport expeditions, it is the time for one to look at his roommate solemnly and say, "Middlebury is not an athletic college," just as a consoling reminder.

Now that the S. P. C. A., pardon, we mean the S. P. A. C. has organized for social and physical purposes, we are expecting that the aesthetes in Hepburn will form a bridge club or something.

Our old friend Admiral Byrd, U. S. N., retired, and Anthony Fokker have began sticking out their tongues at each other, according to newspaper reports. Perhaps the Madison Square garden corporation can stage the battle instead of the coming Sharkey-Carnera affair.

Recommended for masters of ceremonies (see references to perdition period in former columns): Will Rogers in "The Conecticut Yankee", especially the scenes in the torture chambers.

Now that the seniors have blossomed forth with canes, we wonder if top hats will become the rage for Sunday chapel wear?

Now that the glee club has joined the ranks of the unemployed, why doesn't the manager of the opera house get them to chant the advertisments?

"YOU ALONE BUILD YOUR FAITH IN GOD"

The Rev. George Montgomery Says That the Good in Everyone is a Foundation for Faith.

The Rev. George R. Montgomery of Norton, Connecticut, gave the Vespers sermon, May 3, on the building of a faith for yourself. He chose as his text 1 Corinthians viii. 1, "Knowledge puffeth up; love edifieth."

He said in part: "What Paul really meant was, 'love buildeth up.' His statement contains a profound truth. Unless learning is linked with the humanities, it is a hollow shell. At the close of the Victorian period men were engaged in tearing down. They did it for pure enjoyment without any idea of replacing it. Now there is an interest in building up. Constructive engineering is popular. But today there is a lack of recognition of the importance of building a faith; and this is because most people imagine faith comes ready-made and all they have to do is accept it.

"On the contrary, faith is something like character; you have to build it yourself. It is like will power, or preference, or personality; all must be built by you. The plans, the incentive, or the materials can be given but not the building. The incentives toward building a faith are not conformity, curiosity, desire for ease or to escape punishment after death. The incentive towards faith stirs us as no other emotion can. It is a search for what is worth while.

"For the foundations of a faith, I suggest that you take the same one which Christ had, which is becoming more and more effective. For the plan of your faith, let it be commodious. Science has made people look insignificant. Now you have to look within and find more room. Faith has to be built by the plumb line of honesty. It ought to be attractive, and it ought to be made of the right material, material, that can stand temptaions of doubt and despondency.

MIDDLEBURY MEETS THREE GAME DEFEAT

Williams, Springfield, and Massachusetts State are Victors on Road Trip.

On the three day Massachusetts trip the Middlebury baseball team was defeated in all the games played.

The contest with Williams April 30, was lost by a 7-3 score. Springfield subdued the Hesslerites the next day to the tune of 11-6; while in the last contest, played with Massachusetts State college, May 2, the blue and white made a much better showing, bowing gracefully to a 6-5 score, the tally being knotted at the start of the ninth inning at five all.

In the game with Williams the Panthers were submerged by five runs in the opening frame. After that the Hesslerites were able to hold the Purple to two runs. Ashdown started on the mound for Middlebury and after the bases were loaded as the result of errors in the field, walked three men and forced in as many runs. Olson then took the hill and finished the game in fine style.

During the afternoon Middlebury managed to gather seven hits to Williams five. The Panther hits were all too scattered to be effective. Yeomans gathered two hits during the fray, one of these a two bagger. Sheenan, the Williams twirler, fanned eleven blue and white batters to star for the winners. The summary:

The blue and white traveled to Springfield Friday where they were downed by the big score of 11-6.

Bogardus started for the gymnasts and held the local batsmen scoreless until the fourth inning when the Hesslerites began to get the range of his curves. But the Springfield batters had already put across five runs, against which Middlebury only managed to chalk up four. In the sixth both teams got two runs apiece, but from then on the Springfield men were clearly superior, gathering two scores in both the seventh and eighth innings.

In this game the playing of Sorensen was particularly noteworthy. He played errorless ball at third, handling seven chances. He also gathered three hits. Meyers of Springfield got a pair of triples, a double, and a single.

PANTHER TRACKMEN BOW TO SPRINGFIELD

Eastern Intercollegiate Javelin Record Broken as Maroon Scores 98 1-3 to Blue's 36 2-3.

Middlebury suffered defeat at the hands of the Springfield track team by the score of 98 1-3-36 2-3 Saturday at Porter field.

The record in the javelin throw for the Eastern Intercollegiates was broken by Gainsby of Springfield, who flung it a distance of 192 feet nine inches.

All in all the strong wind hampered the time records and severely interfered with the high jump and pole vault. First places in everything except the broad jump and half mile went to the visitors. Brown, Johnson, and Williams duplicated the performance of last week by again making a clean sweep of the broad jump, Brown bettering his previous distance by four inches. Montgomery fell behind both Johnson and Williams.

Pole vaulting was hindered because of the strong wind. Meurling of Springfield got over the bar at 10 feet nine inches, Cooley of the same team placing second. Paul and MacKenzie along with Johnson of Springfield, tied for third place.

In the trials for the 120 yard high hurdles MacLean was injured, tripping on the last barrier although pluckily scrambling over the finish line. However, he managed to gather second place in the finals, running but a yard behind Shaw, holder of the Eastern Intercollegiate record. MacLean also captured third in the 220 lows. Bibby was the only Middlebury man qualifying in the hundred, taking third place.

Two Mile Closest Race.

The two mile run deserves high mention as being the most thrilling event of the meet. The race started with Howard in the lead and Sears holding a fourth position. For the most of the distance the lead alternated between Harwood of Middlebury and Anderson of Springfield. On the final lap all attention was focused upon Sears who turned in such a sensational sprint at Williams week before last. Although the sprint was uncorked according to schedule it didn't quite give him a win. He raced for the greater part of the last stretch abreast of the winner but was beaten at the tape by a good yard.

Thayer Captures Exciting Half.

Middlebury entered four men in the half mile and Springfield two. Thayer lead off at the gun then fell behind, but when the tape was broken it was Thayer who did it. Springfield's fastest half miler was no match for him. Thayer's stride is truly remarkable. His success as a runner is no doubt due in part to his ability to cover a more than average linear distance with less than average number of strides.

Brown with six points was high scorer for Middlebury, with Thayer, Fallon, and MacLean also contributing four or more points to the Blue total. Shaw added ten and Ottaway and Jaegar each added six to the maroon and white score.

Ben Stewart of Middlebury was referee and starter while Dr. Bryant acted as head timekeeper. Other faculty members also officiated.

TENNIS MEN BEAT ST. MIKE'S BY 6-0 SCORE

Showing in First Match Indicates Success in Junior Week Engagements.

The Middlebury tennis team scored an easy victory over the St. Michael's aggregation in a state series match held Monday, May 4 at Winooski.

The final score was 6-0 in favor of the Blue and White. Four singles and two doubles matches comprised the play. The showing of the players was very pleasing to Coach Cornwall and Captain Sloper who have had difficulty in selecting the team because of the lack of practice.

The score by matches:

Singles: Flagg (M) defeated Dupuis (St. M's); 6-0, 6-0; Captain Sloper defeated Dupont (St. M's); 6-3, 6-3; Hendrie (M) defeated Fitzsimmons (St. M's); 6-4, 6-3; Jennings (M) defeated McGee (St. M's); 6-0, 6-1.

Doubles: Sloper and Huntington (M) defeated Dupuis and Dupont (St. M's); 6-1, 6-2; Loomis and Robart (M) defeated McGee and McEnnery (St. M's) 6-2, 6-1.

Three Tournaments Junior Week.

Tournaments with St. Lawrence, New York state teacher's college, and Vermont comprise the bill for Junior Week.

In the meeting Thursday with St. Lawrence Middlebury is playing a school which they easily defeated 5-1 last season. However, in spite of the fact that the visitors have had but a week of out door practice, a much stronger aggregation is expected this year. Six singles and three doubles matches will be played. In addition to the men getting into the St. Mike's battle Allen, Volkmar, and Kerr may have a chance to show their stuff.

Not much is known of the New York state teacher's college team which furnishes the excitement Friday. This is the first time that the teachers have sent a team to play Midd. Four singles and two doubles are included in the competition.

An important state championship match with Vermont comes Saturday. Thus far the Catamount's showing has been very poor. On its eastern Massachusetts trip U. V. M. was defeated by Worcester Tech, 7-0; by Boston University, 6-1; and by Tufts, 5-2. The team has suffered considerably by last year's graduation; most of the best players are not now available and there has been no new material on which to build the 1931 team. Vermont's strong point is Tupper who deservedly plays number one. Last year he defeated Middlebury's best and it will be interesting to see how he comes out in his match with Flagg. Selections for the last two encounters will be based on showings made Thursday.

all the games played, but gaining considerable experience. They were hard put to down St. Mike's a week ago in eleven innings, 7-6, but last Saturday went better although defeated by Williams 2-1. Cummings, who did the pitching in that game was very effective and was better than the Middlebury pitchers were against equal opposition. The batting and the work of the other pitchers has been fair but not exceptional.

Norwich has not been particularly successful in their efforts so far, although they turned in a nice victory over St. Mike's two weeks ago. Against other teams they have not showed any great offensive power and lost by one run margins to Worcester tech and Lowell textile institute. They have not been playing a great deal this last week, so it is difficult to estimate how much trouble they will cause the Panther.

1932 KALEIDOSCOPE IS SLIGHTLY DELAYED

Lateness of Arrival Will Allow Book to be Complete in Every Detail.

Word has been received from the printer of the 1932 Kaleidoscope that the yearbook will be in Middlebury either at the end of this week or early next week. A few minor delays occurred in the shipment of engravings which have caused a holdover of a very few days in the production of the book.

The printer emphasizes that the delays have been only brief, and at this time the book has left the press and is being bound in Boston, from where it will be shipped directly to Middlebury.

While it was originally planned to have the Kaleidoscope in Middlebury by Junior Week, the editor, Kirkland Sloper, reports that the slight delay was sanctioned in order that the book might be complete in every detail. It would have been possible to have had the book here on Monday if a few minor attractions had been omitted, but it was felt that the delay of a very few days was for the best interests of the class.

The last game of the trip was played with the Massachusetts state college team at Amherst. The fray was nip and tuck throughout and the winners was not decided until the Bay Staters scored their sixth run in the ninth to break the five all tie.

Both teams scored one run in the opening frame and two in the third, but Middlebury broke the tie in the fourth, only to be tied again in the fifth. The seventh brought one more run to each club. In the ninth Kneeland opened with a double and Gorham singled to send Kneeland across with the winning tally of the fray.

Affleck, Johnson, Williams, Lovell and Fallon are expected to give good accounts of themselves in their respective events.

Dear

Mr., Miss or Mrs.

Try a fresh Cigarette!

THAT LITTLE STING way down in the throat when you inhale a cigarette is caused by parched dry tobacco. You never feel it when you smoke fresh, prime Camels. The Humidor Pack keeps Camels from drying out or going stale. That's why they are always so cool and mild, so throat-easy. Blended from choicest Turkish and mellowest Domestic tobaccos and kept in tip-top prime condition by an air-tight wrapping of moisture-proof Cellophane, Camels are mighty hard to leave once you have tried them. If you don't believe it, switch to Camels for one whole day, then quit them, if you can.
